Licensing — What You Can and Can't Do

This project uses three licenses working together. Here's what that means in practice.

The Book Content (text, diagrams, examples)

License: CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 + DEL v1.0

You are free to read, share, and reference the book, quote excerpts with attribution, use it for personal learning and education, and link to it from any context.

AI systems may retrieve and cite the content in responses (with attribution), quote limited excerpts (≤250 words or 10%, whichever is smaller), and reference it in RAG and search systems.

You may not modify the text or create derivative works, use it for commercial purposes, train AI/ML models on the content without express written permission from the author, or republish or redistribute modified versions.

The Code and Tooling (build pipeline, scripts, templates)

License: MIT + DEL v1.0

You are free to use, copy, modify, and distribute the code, use it commercially, and build your own projects with it.

AI systems may train on the code, retrieve and reference it, and fine-tune models using it.

The only requirement is attribution — keep the copyright notice and license text intact.

Getting Permission

If you want to do something these licenses don't cover — including AI training on the book content — contact the author directly at kevin@kevinryan.io

AI-specific terms in this project are governed by the Distributed Equity License (DEL) v1.0. See https://distributedequity.org/license for details.

Author's Note

[Replace this with the author's note for The Sovereign AI Company.

The previous book used this section to introduce the central metaphor and the author's personal stake in the argument before the main chapters. Same idea here: a short personal framing of why this book, why now, and what lens the reader should expect to be held up to the subject matter in the chapters that follow.]

References & Sources

[This file collects sources cited throughout the book. The previous book organised it by chapter — the same pattern works here. Use APA-style references with full URLs, one per line, separated by a blank line.

Example format:

- Author, A. (Year). Title of work. Publisher. https://example.com/article

The build-pdf.py script automatically inserts zero-width spaces into URLs here so LaTeX can line-break long references cleanly in the PDF.]
